Abstract

The summary of our project after the large number of university graduates has become necessary to communicate between them, in addition to sharing their publications and news and transferring their experiences, which is useful in spreading the culture of studies, as well as communicating with each other through messages and mobile phones. or emails. On the website that is connected to the internet and operates over time and allows users to access interfaces and pages with a cool and attractive design for users, it is possible to surf the web and quickly browse through news and topics related to the study tasks presented very quickly.
